Take control of the strings and,.The invention relates to the manufacture of a protective housing for the elements of a dynamoelectric machine. It is known that the elements of a dynamoelectric machine are protected by housings of complex shape such as those having a cylindrical or cylindrical-conical shape, and provided with longitudinal ribs or grooves running along the whole length of the inner surface thereof. These housings are produced by the following technique. First of all a die is placed on a table and the base surface of the die is made to bear on the table. An upper die is then inserted on the base and the assembly is made to move longitudinally to the desired depth. After that, a number of additional dies are sequentially inserted over the first. It can thus be seen that each of the dies defines a corresponding half-housing and can be pre-formed in a proper shape. This technique is very unsatisfactory in as much as is it necessary to produce a large number of such housings, one for each of the motor and generator elements. Furthermore, the known housing can be produced only with a single or a small number of dies and then the length of the housing can be greater than the height of the base of the table. The height of a large number of tables would become a large fraction of the length of the housing, which is particularly disadvantageous when this housing is to be lifted. The object of the present invention is to produce a protective housing for the elements of a dynamoelectric machine, whose production is particularly simple and inexpensive.#/bin/sh SRC_DIR="$(dirname "$0")" S

After correctly loading the NSX client application, please configure the software settings to be as per your workstation configuration as follows. Defining the Network Name and Service Ports Name the NSX network and configure NAT ports by either creating a new NAT pool or editing an existing NAT pool. The following sample configuration includes NAT pool, UTM, and SMTP server. If the setup profile does not contain configuration details for the NSX pool, follow these steps to add a NAT pool. After a NAT pool is configured, the associated VDC must be manually added to the setup profile and the NSX pool added to the vSphere environment. You can add the VDC by using one of the following methods. Step 1 Right-click a VDC and select Properties. Step 2 Expand the Configured By field and select the NAT pool assigned to the VDC. Step 3 Confirm the VDC is added to the setup profile. Step 4 Right-click the VDC and select Add vDC. Creating a NAT Pool Use a NAT pool as the default policy for a resource to provide a NAT configuration that supports services between the resource and the NSX Controller. By using the NAT pool, you can use the UTM server, WAF server, or DNS server that was used in a given configuration as the NAT source for a resource that is in use by a VMware ESX host. If no policy is created for a resource or the primary policy is not enabled, then the policy that is created is the default one for the NSX controller. Defining the UTM Server Click the Map icon in the UTM Server field to display the Edit UTM Server dialog box. Defining the WAF Server Click the Map icon in the WAF Server field to display the Edit WAF Server dialog box. Defining the DNS Server Click the Map icon in the DNS Server field to display the Edit DNS Server dialog box. Defining the Subnet Mapping Click the Map icon in the Subnet Mapping field to display the Edit Subnet Mapping dialog box. The range of IP addresses in the range field is displayed in the dialog box. To configure a subnet mapping, type the range of IP addresses that use the subnet mapping, and then click OK. Defining the WAF Server Settings Click the Map icon in the WAF Server Settings field to display the Edit WAF Server 3e33713323
