. Neither the prosecutor nor the defense counsel notified the court that the defendant was incompetent to stand trial. -4- ¶9 In February 2011, the trial court held an evidentiary hearing in order to determine whether the defendant was competent. The trial court cited clinical professionals who opined that the defendant was competent and also recited the reasons for its finding. The trial court indicated that no basis for a hearing had been presented for an involuntary or incompetent plea. On that basis, the trial court overruled the defendant's motion to withdraw his plea. ¶10 We must consider whether the trial court erred in summarily denying the defendant's motion. The defendant's motion set forth various arguments, including that the plea was not knowingly, voluntarily or intelligently made because he had a mental illness. The trial court must determine competency to stand trial at the time of the plea and prior to the imposition of sentence. R.C. 2945.37; State v. Wells, 8th Dist. Q: Executable jar contains additional file in package I have an executable jar file that I run as a java application via the command line. The executable jar file is large and has a lot of files in the package: Root/ dist/ build/ src/ main/ deploy/ I noticed there is an additional file included in this packager that I created for building the executable jar. The content of this file is a zipped copy of the src/main/resources folder. Question is: what is this file for? A zipped copy of resources folder seems to be not very logical. Any ideas why it is present in the jar? A: that should be the actual.jar file, not the contents of the src folder. If you open the.jar file in any zip program, it will be an archive. Inside the archive you will find a "root" folder. This root folder is the root folder of the file inside the.jar archive. The bundle inside is the main jar, the "root" is what you are seeing. SAN FRANCISCO — Frustrated with their lives, scores of Bay Area residents are leaving to enter the marijuana industry, hoping that soon they will be making a lot of money. Some marijuana retailers are reluctant to talk about what they pay workers because they say it is misleading to compare the industry to traditional businesses, which pay wages in the 15 percent range of the Bay Area's regional median wage of $57,000, as does the cannabis business. Some with more experience in the industry are better equipped to answer basic questions about pay, such as whether workers making minimum wage receive health insurance and if so how they pay for it. Chris Conrad, a spokesperson for the Human Rights Foundation of San Francisco, said he has fielded numerous calls from working-class people who want to know if they can get a job at a marijuana store. The answer, he said, is no. "We are not hiring right now," said Conrad, who joined the human rights foundation in April. He said the cannabis industry is "a little more like a boot camp," with employees being paid as they go. "It's a lot of part-time work." The manager at a medical marijuana dispensary in San Francisco confirmed that is the case, saying
