

Portable Date Reminder Free [Latest 2022]

Dates Calendar Reminders The four mobile calendar reminders of Date Reminder. Monthly Inform you when the selected date is in each month. Only set a reminder for the first day of the month. Weekly Inform you when the selected date is in each week, with a description of when it is scheduled. Daily Inform you when the selected date is in each day. Custom Treat a date as being in a custom week of a specific month. For example, you might have one recurring weekly reminder for each week in September, where the selected day is in the September 28th Thursday. Background It's always been a dream of mine to have a unified calendar where I could quickly view all the different calendar items I'm interested in on a single view. This dream actually became a reality some months back: I implemented date/time/calendar to my old site. Check it out (see the left navbar) and please visit the about page for more information. If you're looking for a calendar that looks and works like the Google calendar, and that can be integrated with your GTD methodology, check out date/time! EDIT: I just found timecard.

If you want a calendar that allows you to enter multiple events, views and dates at a time, check it out. Friday, July 21, 2012 One of the first things I had to deal with when I first got the iPhone was the different kind of calendar notification that it's now possible to receive. Twitter - "Dude, have you read my latest article?" or Facebook - "Hey, what's up?" SMS - "Hey, what's up?" Email - "Have you done X yet?" While none of these have any more annoyance value than the usual, they have a different motivation. I find that this combination is most annoying (in the sense of interrupting your activity and forcing you to sit and read the information), where as SMS messages only ask for a result (without asking you to sit and read the information). If you have a TextMate plugin (or Vim!) to switch between apps, you can do something like this: A C I would like to be able to receive notifications like these (facebook, twitter, sms, email) Alternative: SMS

Description Portable Date Reminder is designed to alert you of recurring or non-recurring events, such as birthdays or appointments. The reminders are listed in chronological order, but show recurring events only once (the next one). This gives you an instant view of the alerts (at top), as well as a full list of all reminders. Reminders can be created based on date, time, day of the week, and more. You can choose to have reminders sent when: The current date and time approaches or is near an event Every day approaches or is near an event Every day of the week approaches or is near an event Based on... All dates are based on "between" the start and end dates, not just the start date or the end date. All days are stored from the day and time the event has been created. For example, creating an event on May 14, 2011, will result in reminders for all of May 2011, all of June 2011, all of July 2011, and all of August 2011. That is, even for an event that ends on August 14, 2011. If the reminder date/time is before or after the "start" date/time or before or after the "end" date/time, it is compared to the "start" date/time or the "end" date/time.

Using more than one "date range" when creating a reminder is an advanced feature. If you want to use this feature, you have to first create an event using one of these date ranges, and then create a second reminder based on that event. The second reminder will then be associated with the first event. NOTE: The reminder will also be associated with the notification that the first event was created.

Creating reminders: For each reminder you create, you can choose to have the reminder sent:

- At an exact date/time (in local time)
- At an exact date/time (in UTC time)
- At an exact UTC time (in local time)
- At the same time each week
- At the same time every day
- At the same time every day until a specified day
- Any time in the near future (default, "in the next")
- Randomly
- Every x days (14, 29, 56, 70, or 86, default, "every x days")
- Every y hours

Oncostatin M increases the expression of c-myc through activation of the NF-kappaB pathway in human colon cancer cells. Oncostatin M (OSM) is a member of the tumor necrosis factor family. OSM is expressed in macrophages, fibroblasts, and lymphoid cells, suggesting that it may play a role in host defense. A striking feature of human cancers, including colon cancer, is that OSM is significantly overexpressed in the cancer tissues and is upregulated in colon cancer cell lines. However, the functions and mechanisms of OSM in tumor progression are unknown. We have investigated the signaling events that occur in SW480 cells after exposure to OSM for up to 4 days. OSM increased the expression of c-myc in SW480 cells, but c-myc mRNA levels were unchanged. This suggests that the OSM-induced increase in c-myc expression is post-transcriptional. OSM also induced a dramatic increase in nuclear p65 levels. This was confirmed by immunofluorescence and Western blot. OSM increased the level of c-myc promoter activity, an effect that was inhibited by transfection with dominant negative IkappaB mutant. Our findings suggest that OSM increases the expression of c-myc in human colon cancer cells by promoting the nuclear translocation of the NF-kappaB subunit p65. The characteristics of the urine of pregnant women can be assessed by optical spectroscopy, in the visible and near infrared spectral regions. We will quantify various properties of the urine including the osmolality, protein and cell content, as well as the spectral signatures of the urine components. The most significant result from this work will be the development of an optical device for a non-invasive technique of prenatal diagnosis of fetal chromosomal anomalies. Successful completion of this project will allow the development of an apparatus for the prenatal diagnosis of chromosomal anomalies that can be used in the clinical setting. Ask HN: Webapp to track your blood glucose? - uptownfunk I really don't need it, but would like to find some kind of functionality where you're able to track your blood glucose levels or even just read them out
