Specificity and equivalence of components in the workshop, 'Cannabis and its use: Tackling the harms', held in Salford, UK, October 2010. The workshop, 'Cannabis and its use: Tackling the harms', was held on 27-28 October 2010 in the School of Health Sciences, Salford, UK, and was funded by the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) Collaboration for Leadership in Applied Health Research and Care (CLAHRC) for Greater Manchester, UK. A total of 81 people attended. The participants included patients, carers, health professionals, CAMHLS Policy Research and Planning Consultants, and researchers. No adverse effects were reported. The workshop was based on a first phase focus group comprising five patient and carer members. This paper describes the key findings of the workshop, and the major topics discussed. It was concluded that strong and consistent messages are needed to reduce cannabis use and that education, with consultation with patients, should be the cornerstone of any intervention. The paper provides an exemplar case of how to approach developing and implementing an effective service-based intervention. The workshop was a collaboration between Salford Clinical Commissioning Group (SCCG), the Greater Manchester CAMHS Clinical Lead Group, and Salford Alcohol and Drug Partnership (SADP) and the University of Salford. It was funded by the NIHR Collaboration for Leadership in Applied Health Research and Care for Greater Manchester and SADP (grant number 09/39). The views expressed are those of the authors and not necessarily those of the NHS, the NIHR, or the Department of Health.Image copyright Getty Images Image caption The workers were told to keep three forms of ID on them at all times when they crossed the border A legal challenge has been launched to prevent the UK from automatically rejecting people who have no photo ID. A group of 18 people is challenging the UK's policy, saying it breaches their human rights. The claimants say they were told to keep three forms of ID on them at all times when they crossed the border from France. It is a breach of the European Convention on Human Rights because it is a breach of their right to liberty and security, a public interest case will be heard. The UK Border Force has said the rules are necessary, and it is in the interest of public security. The 18 claimants are all French nationals living in England. They entered the country between

Pandora is slowly expanding its horizons in the U.S., taking steps to open stores and launch a few different offers. The company has hired managers in Southern California and the Southwest, according to a source familiar with the hiring. The openings follow Pandora's March announcement that it was opening a Pandora store in New York City in the fall. Pandora is working to bring more products, like the Bose, Sony and BlackBerry headphones, into the store. An Pandora spokeswoman said she couldn't comment on staffing plans. The company is offering a few free headphones for the holidays when it opens its first U.S. stores. Pandora also said in a release that it is expected to eventually open 50 Pandora stores and 50 Pandora-branded stores across the U.S. This year, Pandora opened a store in San Francisco, and it plans to open new stores in Chicago, Los Angeles, and Portland. Separately, Pandora is offering new features to its $9.99 monthly subscription service. The company is adding services including offline listening, a specific search function (text words, artists, genres) and new download options. The offering is just a drop in the bucket when it comes to Pandora's business, but it will help the company attract some users. The company already has more than 20 million monthly paid subscribers in the U.S. Pandora reported it had 19.8 million unique users who listened to music or podcast via Pandora in the first quarter, excluding its ad-supported service. Pandora, which went public in 2010, is now trading in the black, thanks to more than $1 billion in revenue and $50 million in net income in the first quarter, as it expanded out of mobile listening. But the company faces tough competition, even from its own ad-supported service. According to IAB, Apple Music had 31.6 million paid subscribers in April, Spotify had 44 million, and Google Play had 64.5 million. Pandora does have its charms, however. The company has made a huge impact on the music industry by rewarding artists for playing their music. Pandora's own ad-supported service generates $2 billion in revenues for the company each year. Pandora also has its own stage at industry music conferences, where it hosts major artists. Last year, Pandora CEO Tim Westergren said the company planned to do $10 billion in revenue a year by 2020. The company announced its ad-supported service
