CompletableFuture equivalent in IronPython I'm using the.NET Future/CompletableFuture to split work between several independent threads. My approach was to call the methods (without the asynchronous keyword) in a while loop (using time.sleep(2) between each call). This approach works, but I'm hoping that there is a better approach. Can I do this in IronPython (with or without IronPython 2.7.2?) A: This is a known issue, as there's currently no way to run code from one thread in another thread.
