a prelude to a final showdown with the three sons of Bellatrix, who teleported in on stage. It had been a very long time since Harry and Voldemort had seen each other. Voldemort emerged from his Pensieve and looked around. "Voldemort" said Harry as he walked towards Voldemort, "I have come to terms with the fact that your son is a pathetic excuse for a wizard and that he will never defeat me. You are a pathetic excuse for a man who will never be able to defeat me. Let us not make this any more difficult than it already has been." Harry waited there for Voldemort to say something for a while. Harry had hoped that the hatred and anger he felt towards Voldemort would make him angry enough to say something back. "Yes, I know" said Voldemort as he walked towards Harry, "I have been testing you now for nearly forty years. The prophecy that makes me lord of the dark arts has come to pass. But, I have realized now that you are perfect." Harry looked up at Voldemort and said, "You know I've been wondering since Voldemort died why Dumbledore didn't kill you, but why I wasn't able to kill you, but you know that I could have if I had known that it would actually work, right? If you know that I could have killed you that means you can die as well, right? You could die no more than I could if I decide that I don't like you. That's not a reason not to kill you, so the only reason you can die is if you want to so the only reason you can die is if you want to, isn't that right?" "Yes, I know" said Voldemort as he drew out his wand, "I wanted to die but I knew that if I lived I could re-create you and get rid of you, but I want to know why you didn't try to kill me. If I do not know the answer to this question then there is no reason to be afraid of me. What I can do to you I can do to you again. If I could do something to you that you had never seen then I could do it again. But what would be the point? What would the point of me wishing to make you suffer be, if I could not create a new Harry Potter? Is there something that you have never seen that I can do to you? Are you that weak? You think that you are powerful [Discussion on treatment principles and clinical experience for knee osteoarthritis]. Knee osteoarthritis (KOA) is one of the most common joint diseases in China. Due to the aging of the population, the number of the affected patients is increasing year by year, which brings a heavy burden to society in terms of economy, medical resources, and the patient's quality of life. KOA is a main symptom of chronic primary and secondary arthritis and the most common cause of osteoarthritis. Its main symptoms are joint pain and deformity. Among those with KOA, 40%-50% of cases are left knees with the most common features being pain, tenderness, swelling, a limited range of motion, and joint deformation. KOA is a disease with no effective medicine and is currently treated with non-pharmacological therapy and pharmacological therapy. Non-pharmacological therapy mainly includes maintaining the normal function of the knee joint, relieving pain, improving the range of motion, and reducing the degree of disability. Pain reduction or pain relief depends on oral medication, physical therapy, and other traditional therapies. Pharmacological therapy mainly includes NSAIDs, steroids, COX2 inhibitors, hyaluronic acid, DMP-777, and LIOX. Due to the lack of the efficacy of oral medications and the low compliance rate of oral medications, hyaluronic acid and DMP-777 have been used in the clinic for a long time. In summary, non-pharmacological and pharmacological therapies are complementary in KOA, and the ultimate goal is to relieve and relieve the patient's pain and improve the quality of life for KOA patients.
