Here's a beginners' tutorial that walks you through a few essential Photoshop commands. Many of these features aren't found in other programs, so it's important to learn them and master Photoshop's layers and powerful masking tools before you start using it professionally. Learning to Edit Photoshop's user interface is quite different from the rest of the software packages, but the commands are the same. You'll be editing like a pro from the start. If you already have some basic understanding of image editing, you can expect to find a lot to learn. Some of it involves working with masks, creating and editing layers, and using powerful tools like the Pen tool for drawing and the Brush tool for applying paint. You can also use various filters to give your images a particular look. You can download Photoshop Free Download Photoshop Free Other Programs There are several other image-editing programs, most of them aimed more at beginners. These include GIMP, Paint Shop Pro (PSP), Picasa, and Windows Live Photo Gallery. These programs also feature a layered user interface, which will enable you to retouch images, but they don't have as many options as Photoshop. If you want to retouch images using only the Edit toolbar, you'll have a much easier time with Photoshop. Using Photoshop's Layers The Layers panel in Photoshop is the same in all of the program's editions, and it lets you organize and manage your layers. Layers make it easy to combine different elements of an image into one composite image. When you open the Layers panel, click the Add New Layer icon to create a new, blank layer. You can also double-click the New Layer icon to make a new layer at the current editing position. You can hide (make invisible) any layer. You can't restore a layer once you've hidden it, but you can move or duplicate it as you need. Double-click the icon in the Layers panel to show the active layer and its contents. Click the Stack icon at the top of the Layers panel, and then click the hidden layer to make it visible. You can also click the icon, which looks like a gray circle with an X, to duplicate the layer. An icon with an arrow above it also appears in the Layers panel when a layer contains a selection. An outline or dashed line around a selection is known as the selection marquee. If you

Q: Mostrar un reporte en el sistema operativo en el sistema operativo tengo que mostrar un reporte, espero el usuario lo inserte en la app y me lo mande con telnet o lo reciba por la web, ¿cómo podría hacerlo con un widget? osea de un widget el usuario lo inserte y no debe seguir habiendo que el sistema operativo envíe los datos con telnet, pero tiene que poder mostrarlo desde la app en un widget. A: Las apps deben comunicarse a través del Mobile Backend, no a través del teléfono, debes decidir en que forma entra ese reporte, a través de una APK o por medio de una conexión web, siempre y cuando estes seguros de que se recibirá directamente desde el Backend web. Un ejemplo de como comunicar reportes desde el backend y recibirlos directamente desde la app sería la siguiente: En la sección Cómo proporcionar reportes desde el backend se detallan los pasos necesarios para comunicar el reporte desde el Backend Web o desde una conexión a una web. Qué tengo que desarrollar al respecto: 1. Decidir que forma entra el reporte en el Backend Si lo deseas enviar por medio de una aplicación móvil del formato APK, debes definir de antemano el contenido del reporte en una tabla JSON. Si no lo deseas debes emplear una API Web, la que decidas hacer desde tu sistema. Se puede decir que el Backend esta Enantioselective and activity-structure-activity relationships of electrophilic conjugate addition to nitroalkene are effectively interpreted by CDK2/cyclin A complex model. Enantioselective [3 + 2] dipolar cycloaddition reaction between nitroalkene and aromatic epoxides catalyzed by chiral bis-oxazoline catalysts and its activities and diastereoselectivities are analyzed by normal mode analysis method of enzyme dynamics. Dynamic parameters and electrostatic potential are derived based on the normal mode analysis method. The parameters are correlated with experimental and computed transition state descriptors such as activation energies and entropies and compared with enantioselectivity of catalytic systems by both nonlinear regression and linear regression correlation analysis. An excellent correlation was found between chiral bis-oxazoline catalyst and CDK2/cyclin A complex (CDK2/cyclin A complex can be used as a mimic of CDK2/cyclin A for the dipolar cycloaddition reaction). The chiral bis-oxazoline catalyst acts as a template in the CDK2/cyclin A complex. Thus the chiral bis-oxazoline catalyst is also analyzed by CDK2/cyclin A complex model.
