When opening a lightroom catalog, the window Dimensions tab goes blank when you review the DPI settings. When I switch to the tab without the DPI settings, it shows the settings. Otherwise the program would have no way for you to select a custom DPI setting. I found this was a bug. I have started up Adobe Creative Cloud and imported a 1GB JPEG file. After I should be able to preview this 1GB image but when I click on the preview option I get an error saying "The watermark could not be displayed because it is too big. Choose another size (0, 0, 0)". This is the only size that I can preview it. Am I missing something? I have downloaded and opened Adobe CS5.5 on Windows 7/64-bit and Windows 8 Pro 32-bit. In both cases, when I try to open a file, the error message says: "Photoshop can't determine your path." I don't know how to find the solution or if it is possible. Thanks, With all the 2-year old laptops in the house, I am never short of CPU-consuming CAD apps. Sometimes it takes a while to start them. It happened to me today: when I was trying to open a sheet of images, Sublime Text opened first and took about half of my CPU. That was enough to freeze Photoshop. So, I had to close Sublime Text. In order to fix this, I had to stop the menu bar icons (if you are using them) for the app I was working with. That took some time. Then, I remembered that I still had Sublime Text opened ... I was like "ahh, no way, how could you?!". It was not even a week ago when I lost a file that I was working on and I did not have Sublime Text opened. That was when I decided to make sure I don't lose anything else ever again.
